

Need help with your shooting eyes?

Shooters that must wear prescription glasses have special needs. Problem is that when you talk to your local Optometrist about shooting glasses he or she generally doesn't know what you're talking about because they don't shoot.

That was my problem. Every Optometrist I spoke to either didn't know anything about prescribing glasses for a shooting environment or was in the business of prescribing glasses for reading and driving; not shooting. After many hours of internet research on the topic and the purchase of two "useless" prescription glasses from local Optometrists, I finally found the answer: Dr. Barry Nolt.

Dr. Barry Nolt has been in private practice Optometry since 1976 when he graduated from the University of Waterloo, School of Optometry. He is a native Alberta resident and lives and practices in Edmonton.

Barry, a shooter himself, has a unique speciality in competitive shooting and prescription eyeglasses, contact lenses and associated ophthalmic appliances to enhance to competitive shooters at an Olympic-level. He has written and published many articles that are available to be read on his web site: <http://www.drbarrynolt.com/shooters-optometrist--shooting-articles>
